Classes are established and maintained in addition to the college's instructional program. Classes and activities include but are not limited to: classes in civic, occupational, literacy, health, and technical education. These may include a variety of topics in business, computers, creative arts, health and fitness, home and garden, language and writing, music and drama, personal growth, trips and travel, as well as sports camps, and guided tours.

Classes are designed to provide instruction and to contribute to the physical, mental, moral, economic, or civic development of the individuals or groups enrolled in them.

Classes are open for the admission of adults and those minors who in the judgment of the governing board may benefit from the programs.

General Fund monies are not expended to establish and maintain community education classes.

Students enrolled in community education classes may be charged a fee not to exceed the cost of maintaining community education classes.
